Demar DeRozan – Toronto Raptors

As a freshman at University of Southern California, DeRozan appeared in all 35 games, averaging 13.9 points and 5.7 rebounds per game. DeRozan finished the season strong by being honored as the Most Outstanding Player in the 2009 Pac-10 Tournament. As expected, DeRozan declared for the 2009 NBA draft and was selected #9th by the Toronto Raptors. With his 6-6 220 pound frame, he draws comparisons to such NBA players as Richard Jefferson and Vince Carter.

Tyreke Evans – Sacramento Kings

Evans was named the starting point guard at Memphis during his freshman year, filling the shoes of the 2009 NBA Rookie of the Year, Derek Rose. During his freshman campaign, he averaged 17.1 points, 3.9 assists, and 5.4 rebounds per game. Before Memphis, Evans was a highly touted recruit, being ranked the top shooting guard in the Class of 2008 by ESPN. Tyreke was selected 4th overall in the 2009 NBA Draft by the Sacramento Kings.

Greg Monroe - Georgetown

Monroe, a 6-11 power forward from Georgetown was named the Big East Freshman of the Year in 2009. Monroe proved to be a versatile player by averaging 12.7 points, 6.5 rebounds, 2.5 assists, 1.8 steals, and 1.5 blocks per game his freshman year. Monroe is a projected lottery pick in the 2010 NBA Draft.

Kemba Walker – University of Connecticut

Walker filled an important role for the Huskies this year when starting point guard A.J Price went down with an injury. Kemba averaged 8.9 points and 2.9 assists, while proving to be a difference maker in many games.
